

Seasonal Public Health Inspectors Needed

Spend a summer as a public health inspector.

- Get hands-on public health experience with the potential to be rehired each summer.
- You'll get training and the opportunity to perform environmental health and sanitary code inspections.
- Flexible employment terms, start in May through September.
- Positions available across New York State.
- Travel reimbursed, valid driver's license required, personal vehicle may be required in some areas.

Make a difference.

- Conduct inspections of hotels, motels, campgrounds, mobile home parks, lodging, food service, pools, beaches, and water supplies.
- Help protect drinking water.
- Reduce community health risks.
- Improve children's health and safety.

Qualifications and how to apply.

- Must have one year of experience in environmental health or sanitarian work, medical, or laboratory technology functions OR a combination of college credits in specific science courses listed on the job posting.
- Transcripts must be submitted with applications, and name(s) of the college(s) where credits were obtained, including qualifying course names and credit hours.

Learn about public health and start your career today!

Hourly Rate: $22.53

Flexible and full-time positions in office settings across New York State.

Work outdoors.

Employment for the summer
starts in May with flexible end dates.

Occasional weekend work.

