The purpose of this GIS is to clarify the scope of services that Medical Assistance recipients may receive under the Consumer Directed Personal Assistance Program ("CDPAP").

The CDPAP, which is authorized by Social Services Law ("SSL") § 365-f, enables Medicaid recipients who are eligible for home care services to have greater flexibility and freedom of choice in obtaining needed services. CDPAP participants may hire, train, supervise and discharge their aides and, in particular, may exercise greater control regarding the manner in which their aides complete the various personal care tasks and other services for which the CDPAP participant has agreed to accept responsibility under the program.

Medicaid recipients eligible to participate in the CDPAP may need assistance with personal care services and/or other home care services. The CDPAP aide may perform home health aide and skilled nursing services when a registered professional nurse has determined that the individual who will instruct the CDPAP aide is self-directing and capable of providing such instruction. [Education Law § 6908(1)(a)(iii)]. The scope of services that a CDPAP aide may provide thus includes all services provided by a personal care services aide as well as all services provided by a home health aide, registered nurse, licensed practical nurse, physical therapist, occupational therapist or speech pathologist.

Accordingly, social services districts' CDPAP assessments and authorizations should include the full scope of home care services that the Medicaid recipient may require and for which he or she, or his self-directing representative, agrees to be responsible under the CDPAP program. When issuing an authorization, districts must include not only the personal care or home health aide services tasks with which the recipient needs assistance but also any skilled tasks that the CDPAP aide will provide such as nursing services, physical therapy, occupational therapy or speech pathology services. The social services district should determine the amount of time required to complete a task by evaluating the task to be performed and discussing with the Medicaid recipient, or representative, the steps needed to complete the task. Tasks that are needed, but for which the Medicaid recipient or his or her representative is unwilling or unable to assume responsibility under the CDPAP, may be provided through another source, such as a licensed home care services agency, CHHA, LTHHCP or a private duty nurse.
